Stephen has been an active environmentalist who has done field work, public speaking and lobbying to all levels of government. He has spoken at numerous school and community gatherings as well as on radio. His comments on environmental issues have been cited in newspapers and newsletters and his artworks are appreciated around the world.

His love of wildlife and a need for illustrations for environmental newsletters was a catalyst for Stephen. After a management career in the ceramic industry for 20 years Steve set his sights on an artistic future. 25 years had elapsed since he last attended high school art classes and the first step was to be VCE. The first year of his artistic career resulted in distinctions in VCE Studio Art, a proposal from a leading publisher for an illustrated book and the sale of his first wildlife paintings.

His rapid rise continued. His original artworks and prints appear in local and international collections. His artworks have been used in books, magazines, graphic displays, numerous environmental newsletters, an R.S.P.C.A. calendar and an 8 page feature in 'The Artist's Palette Magazine' has showcased his work.
