Of all art subjects, Sue has chosen to do wildlife art almost exclusively. She is keenly inspired to capture the magnificence of those living creatures that she believes only tentatively share our planet. Our wildlife deserves our immediate and sustained attention. The wildlife on this planet are like the canaries taken down the mines, if the canary dies, we are all in serious trouble.

Sue is also a keen wildlife photographer and fortunate enough to have travelled. At home in Australia she uses her experience with wildlife rescue, Healesville Sanctuary volunteering and her background of ornithological knowledge to practice her art and to promote conservation of fragile species.

Sue's art is now represented both in Australia and overseas in private collections as far as Canada, England and Germany. Sue has lived in Melbourne all her life.

She uses tinted charcoal, graphite, acrylic and various other mediums and is available for commissions.
